amid every change

there is an advantageous co-operation—

the stalwart old and the uncertain new

Newness was evident everywhere in CHS as Truckers trooped back to classes on September 3. Yet, was it new? Much of the old and familiar still greeted returning students and new arrivals. New were many facilities and much equipment — old was the building's structure; new were the administration and several teachers — "old" were other faculty members and well-known friends; new were the educational challenges — old was the previously-acquired knowledge; new was the Portsmouth School System — old (though somewhat revised) were the teaching methods; new were rules, regulations, and improvements — old were habits, studies, and traditions.

Thus, the old; hence, the new — an harmonious combination of the two evolved daily to form this year of Trucker life. But one thing was different—it was our year.

Nin,
To a hairy guy and a good tennis player.
Hope to see you next year.
Keep up the racket!

top truckers bring new aims to chs education

Coming into Trucker life and times to oversee the smooth operation of CHS. Mr. Galliford brought new ideas and ways of achieving educational aims with him. As the one in charge of public relations and the academic departments, the new principal also supervised finances, the cafeteria, and school maintenance in addition to providing leadership for both teachers and pupils.

Mr. Comey found discipline almost a full-time job in his newly-assumed position of assistant principal. Scheduling and supervisory activities consumed the rest of his school duties as he took on the status of the second in command.

(top) NEW TO THE principalship, Mr. Walter Galliford, with a B.A. from the University of North Carolina and a M.Ed. from the University of Virginia, oversees Trucker life. (bottom left) Barbara Seebo and Marie Fletcher fulfill orders placed by the faculty for mimeographing. (bottom right) Mr. Lyman Comey, who received his B.S. from Virginia Polytechnical Institute and his M.Ed. from William and Mary, is the assistant principal.

increased office personnel cope with paper work, computerization, finances, clerical complexities

10,000 additional books, unprecedented carpeted study area make library "newest room"

One of the most conspicuous changes made at Churchland was the appearance of the library. All previously-owned books having been taken by Chesapeake, the library immediately began a massive rebuilding program. This included the purchasing of over ten thousand new books (an increase of two thousand volumes), entirely new visual aids, and the doubling of available space and seating capacity by incorporating an adjoining classroom for visual aids facilities. An unprecedented carpeted study area enabled Trucker bookworms to meditate in "luxurious" surroundings and added a bit of atmosphere to the entire school.

Aiming to aid every student, no matter what his future plans might be, the guidance counselors set into motion a series of projects: the introduction of Educational Opportunity Night; the giving of standardized tests; and the handling of school computerization. With use of guidance aides, the grouping of catalogs by locale, and the setting up of a counseling room, the guidance personnel were able to serve students to a better advantage than ever before.

expression through composition, discussion boosted by new techniques

Argumentative discussions, expository paragraphs, and creative writing assumed prominence in English classes when Truckers once again delved into some of the intricacies of their native tongue. With requirements running the gamut from seeing films and listening to literature on records to the traditional writing of term papers, learning grammar and making monthly book reports, English students found, also, that new maps, a newly-required World "Lit" course, and a potential library of tape recordings made for a busy and involved year of learning how to communicate more expressively.

Unprecedented — the description of the brand new Science Department. Ultra-modern equipment, including a kymograph, a portable P. H. meter, and a centrifuge, doubled the extensive lab inventory. An innovated curriculum included a Biology Science Curriculum Study course and an Introductory Physical Science course. The new and the former courses, revised, emphasized invigorating student involvement by increased lab work and personal eperimentation.

History to both juniors and eighth graders and coaches varsity football.

economics, humanities—new challenging courses

Political and social involvement was strong this year in the Social Studies Department. Students felt election involvement when they voted in the mock election which the department helped to co-ordinate. Teams of lawyers and city police, who discussed and answered questions on law and order February 19, Law Day, helped students in appreciating law in our society. Humanities, a new course involved in mankind, was uniquely related to many courses as was economics, a course in commercial theory and the financial status of our country.

tangents, theorems, triangles provide "wealth" for math scholars

Get rich quick! Sound improbable? Yes; but you'll never convince the advanced math students who made 200 cents an hour tutoring less knowledgeable pupils, for by assiduous studying and a little effort, these dreaded tangents, theorems, and trapezoids "paid off" for advanced students. Newness was the "in thing" in the math department, as a quartet of new teachers, overhead projectors, a transparency copy maker, x and y grouping for geometry, and analysis (advanced senior math) all contributed to provide a new atmosphere for the pupils. Such innovations made the usual the unusual and added new stimuli to one of the three r's.

new labs challenge linguists

Beginning the school term with three new electronically equipped classrooms, installed at a cost of over $10,000, the Foreign Language Department embarked on its yearly program of injecting a bit of Spain, France, Italy, Germany, and Russia into Trucker life. Filmstrips, tapes, games, songs, and club meetings combined with usual teaching methods to give budding linguists opportunities to express themselves in ways unfamiliar but highly interesting. "Salvete," "danke," "grazie," "Bonjour," "Si, si, senor" — all became accepted sounds around school as local linguists learned lively languages.

fine arts—myriad of opportunities

Although a relatively small department, the fine arts teachers offer a myriad of opportunities for students to develop musical and artistic talents a la Sousa, Picasso, and Streisand. In a creative vein, art students expressed their ideas through sculpture, acrylic paints, and graphic arts.

In vocal music, development of the ability to sing and read music led students to put on the spring musical, to take part in the Waterfront Concerts, to present the musical variety "World of Peanuts" as well as numerous school concerts. The band, taking part in the All-Virginia and Regional Bands with some 13 representatives, played in local parades, at all football games, and travelled to Washington for the Cherry Blossom Festival, postponed from last year.

sawdust, sewing, ciphering provide students with special skills

The mass production of rocking footstools kept the wood shop students busy. Behind the stadium sawdust flew as some would-be Trucker carpenters constructed an assortment of carry-home projects.

Mechanical drawing classes learned to read their scales and to make simple and radial drawings. Advanced classes learned to read and draw blueprints as well as isometric designs.

Home Ec. girls were responsible for the tantalizing odors which wafted through the halls daily. They also became well-versed in child care and sewing.

"How many words per minute? Only five mistakes?" Such inquiries were made by apprehensive young typists who joined the progressive business program, which offered courses ranging from clerical office training to basic corporate law. Through VOT, DE, and ICT, students were able to apply their typing, bookkeeping, personal selling, and shorthand throughout the area. Guided by an enthusiastic faculty, business students were eager to learn new skills for tomorrow's use from the multitude of new machines and practical approaches taught.

revitalized phys ed aims at developing future skills

"Alteration and diversification" can sum up the revitalized physical education program, as over $20,000 was expended towards the improvement of its part of CHS. Included were the complete repainting and refinishing of the gym and the purchasing of all new equipment.

With an emphasis on skills that can be used later in life, staffers, which consisted mostly of new members, strove to teach both boys and girls golf and tennis, a first for the school. The staff agreed that the renovated facilities increased enthusiasm and interest among all their students and offered more opportunities for physical training.

representatives seek voice of students via polls

"All in favor raise your right hand," was a familiar phrase in homerooms, as homeroom representatives guided their classes in numerous polls seeking the voice of the school. They aimed to build communication in the SCA, bringing the ideas of the homeroom to council meetings and relating the council's ideas to the homerooms.

Working with the new school system of Portsmouth brought changes which were met with a new enthusiasm.

A close relationship among their committees was a main objective of the SCA committee chairmen. Induction, summer planning sessions, and conferences with Mr. Galliford oriented these students, after being chosen the mainstay of the association by the four officers.

A prime aim of this group was to draw more people into active service, to convince the student body that they were all necessary members.

Responsible for the activities of the student body and improvement of the SCA, they expressed and applied worthy ideas.

second twenty-five years heralds new size trucker

Work, done and redone, exasperating, frustrating, frantic, and rewarding . . . Pictures, advertisements, layouts, headlines, copy, and long afternoons . . . this was only a small part of the effort that made the Trucker.

A new polaroid camera and a new size book gave the staff its chance to experiment with all new ideas and to herald the beginning of the second twenty-five years of the Trucker with its best edition yet.

subscriptions, ads all "news" to trucker topics

"Would anyone like a subscription to Trucker Topics?" And so began a year of change for the school newspaper staff. Steered by co-editors Donna Marsh and Leone Seebo, the journalists had to sell subscriptions to students and solicit advertising.

Of the new features, the "Can You Imagine . . . ?" column was the most notable. And as students eagerly awaited the arrival of each issue, they, along with the staff asked—"Can you imagine . . . 'the Trucker Topics being ready on time?' "

"Ghostly white-clad figures flitting down the halls" . . . a quote from Vergil's Aeneid maybe? No, it's only those Latin students! Have you ever seen "Sanctus Romanus", or some of those zany Saturnalia presents like, would you believe, denture cream? If that doesn't convince you that Latin is alive today, you ought to have seen those home made Roman valentines—"Es mea delecta sola". From Caesar to slave, from first year through fifth, the "hodierni Romani" attended fun filled meetings highlighted by the banquet in the spring.

german clubs combine to enjoy study of deutschland

Comprised of German students from both Western Branch and Churchland, the German Club enjoyed, throughout the year, various programs on the German way of life. During a program on German music, a flute quartet from the band performed a short Bach chorale for the club. The Christmas party included a discussion of German Christmases and singing carols.

Illustrations of German music by members of the band, a program on Christmas in Germany, singing German carols, and movies on German life and culture—all were a part of a busy year for members of Der Deutsche Verein.

amigos bake for "mucho moolah"

"Bienvenido al Club de Espanol!" And each member, old and new alike, did receive a warm welcome as the club got underway. New sponsors called for an exciting reorganization with the election of officers and discussions of club projects.

Throughout the year Los Amigos held bake sales to raise funds for anticipated field trips. At Christmas, the club celebrated with a fiesta in the true Spanish style — a party pianata full of assorted goodies and much noisy gaiety. With the annual banquet in the spring, the "muchachos y muchachas" got additional insights into Spanish life and times.

guest speakers provide french atmosphere for "messieurs et mademoiselles"

"Bonjour, mes amis!" And so, with the emphasis on conversing in French exclusively at its meetings, the club launched itself into a season of fun and merriment. But all was not play. While French songs and games were established traditions, also on the agenda were various guest speakers who discussed the people of France and their customs, thus adding to the foreign atmosphere.

Highlighting the year were the Christmas party and the Spring Banquet.

Boasting the largest membership of any club at school, these "peppers" created "spice" for our various teams.

During football season, pep tags, hall signs, and teacher tags brought out the creative ability of the various members of the "spirit mob."

The pep boosters sold doughnuts and TC decals to raise funds that aided in buying paint, poster board, and pompons for the cheerleaders.

varied, rewarding, projects for others, themselves filled girls' year

With a stress on participation, Churchland Tri-Hi-Y undertook a year of varied and rewarding projects. Crisp and sunny Saturdays in early October saw members working madly to assemble a float for the homecoming parade. At Halloween the girls gleefully donned costumes and met to entertain in the children's ward at Maryview Hospital.

Thanksgiving brought a canned food drive for an underprivileged family. An exchange of polyannas enhanced Christmas.

February arrived heralding the annual Miss Churchland Contest.

white elephant sale provides funds for unicef

"We love animals" became the by-words of Cem Tri-Hi-Y during their Valentines project backing the Humane Society. Participation at the District Conference and in National Hi-Y, Tri-Hi-Y Week was their first project, followed closely by a white elephant sale from which proceeds were given to UNICEF, providing for the needy and the making of Christmas cards for the marines in Viet Nam. A profitable stationary sale helped to boost the Cem treasury. A pot luck dinner and a pajama party balanced the work and play of the Cem members as each one contributed her part in the year's activities.

hemby helpers hunt finances for scholarship

Fun and welfare were on the agenda for Connie Hemby. Parties and covered dish suppers added pa-zazz to the meetings. A football game with the boys of Portsmouth Boys' Home served both the girls and boys with pure fun. The lack of a good football led the club to give both a football and a basketball to the boys for Christmas. Selling doughnuts and collecting newspapers provided funds for projects and an annual scholarship to one of its senior members.

bake sales, airplane wash furnish project funds

Capitalizing on the Y purpose of service to others, Beck Tri-Hi-Y assumed the role of Santa Claus on a small scale by distributing Christmas goodies to children at Maryview Hospital and acted as long distance mailmen by sending cards to Marines in Viet Nam. By participating in Tri-Hi-Y Week and the district conference at Wilson, the girls shared a common purpose with other clubs. An airplane wash provided a unique way of raising finances in the spring.

perrecta honors faculty with apples for teachers

Tri-Hi-Y Week began a year of projects and planning for Perrecta Tri-Hi-Y members. "An apple for the teacher?" Yes; in this way, Perrecta members honored the faculty.

Collecting dog food for the humane society and items for Thanksgiving baskets found Perrecta members involved in community projects. Bake sales and card sales helped to build the treasury needed for the many activities. The year ended with a mother-daughter banquet and installation of new officers.

webb brings holiday joy to needy family of nine

Turkey with all of the trimmings for Thanksgiving and toys, clothes, food, a tree, and cards for Christmas brightened the holiday season for a family of nine which Webb Tri-Hi-Y sponsored. Members also made Christmas favors for the patients at Maryview. A bulletin board decorated monthly by Webb enlivened the drab second floor hall. Annual events included heart sisters for Valentine's Day. A fashion show, and a mother-daughter banquet rounded out Webb's year.

succedo adds mr. clean touch by supplying soap for basements

As every Tri-Hi-Y, Succedo pursued an ambitious year of activities in keeping with the aim of the club. A sure way of raising needed funds — doughnut sales — gave the girls the opportunity to sell a "mountain" of the community's favorite bakery product. In search of further means to secure finances, the girls conducted a rummage sale. In conjunction with other Y affiliates, Succedo held a Humane Society Drive. To add a touch of Mr. Clean to our home away from home, members assisted in supplying soap for the dispensers in the basements.

pledges carry out traditions, "services" of hi-y

Thoughts of a two-week pledge brought unease among the new group of boys selected to pledge for Dick Shea Hi-Y. These boys followed the tradition of carrying trays, addressing veterans with "Sir" and assisting old members. The club maintained an active year with the leadership of Lynn Tarkenton by selling doughnuts and readying for the Snowball. Interest in serving stimulated members to put their best foot forward in carrying out pre-set goals of a Y-affiliated organization.

truckers place second with "spiderman" float

Through rain, sleet, and snow, weary Truckers rang doorbells throughout the community on Saturday mornings and supplied its residents with donuts—donuts—donuts. Skippered by Steve Bristow and inspired by Beth McManaway, each Trucker mailed a Christmas card to a soldier in Vietnam and made teacher signs. Truckers Hi-Y captured second place at homecoming with their float on "Spiderman." A service to the community and an asset to the school summed up Truckers Hi-Y.

scientists view film on open heart surgery

"We're RESEARCHERS, not club members!" boasted the Scientific Society. The eager group, organized this year as a brainstorm of Mr. Burton, tried to work with and expand the talents of our future scientists by challenging them—confronting them with problems to solve and directions to pursue. pH meters, kymographs, and other new equipment were at the disposal of the students for their projects. When they met, they evaluated each other's work, listened to projects or college professors, or witnessed films, such as on open heart surgery. Judging from the exclamations of the junior scientists, they really loved to "do their thing".

practicalities of science serve to boost interests of elementary-sponsored club

Science is a practical subject but how do you make it appealing to young children? This was the dilemma faced by the members in carrying out their two-year old program of sponsoring an elementary school science club! Mathematics, microscopes, genetics, and light were topics covered in these elementary sessions. On April Fool's day an appropriate subject was covered: science and superstition. Besides this project, the club indulged itself in films of NASA's Appolo Seven and Eight projects.

exploring future careers concern of medical club

With a continuing need being felt in the student body for information about opportunities and careers available in the medical profession, the Medical Club set as its yearly aim once again to offer information and programs concerning this wide-open field of tomorrow. Fortunate enough to have a registered nurse, Mrs. Woody, as adviser, the club, though small in number, assumed the king-sized task of presenting the varied fields of service in medical careers. Helping members to achieve worthy goals and fostering these goals thus occupied the clubs limited meetings.

future teachers assist present faculty with projects

Selecting, aiding, and assisting . . . the Future Teachers of America started the year learning what teaching includes.

Every month the FTA selected a teacher of the month. They chose these due to outstanding contributions to the school. In June, they selected an exceptional instructor as Teacher of the Year.

To receive some insight into the "behind the scene" work of teachers, FTA members resumed the teachers' aide program on a voluntary basis.

Future Teachers of America assisted parents in locating their classes on "Back-to-School Night." When Easter arrived, they helped teachers at Churchland Elementary amuse their students by giving them an Easter Egg Hunt.

foreign neighbor theme favors fha programs

"Your neighbors near and far" was the theme of the FHA. The girls visited VEPCO during Christmas to learn new recipes for foreign foods of the holiday season. The year was filled with interesting programs and guest speakers. Mrs. Katz spoke to the homemakers on the differences between American and foreign education. The activities concluded with the annual mother-daughter banquet.

Cupid's little helpers—this was the Art Club on Valentine's Day as members went about the halls delivering its once-a-mail to lucky recipients. With the making and selling Christmas tree ornaments, also, the members added finances to its treasury. For individual benefit, these artists sponsored a spring art show and sale of their work which they did during class and club meetings. By such projects and by having semi-monthly meetings, the future painters and designers gained additional opportunities to learn.

cleaning trophy case—job of varsity "c"

Mowing members' lawns, washing their cars, and operating the concession stand at home basketball games were a few of the tasks in which the pledges for the Varsity "C" Club eagerly participated.

The club sold candy as a money raising project in the fall in addition to taking the responsibility of keeping the trophy case clean. Finally, the members found that all is not work in the club, as they held their annual spring picnic.

monogramers find part-time employment selling programs at football games

Vivacious leadership appeared this year in the form of Mrs. Buchanan, the lettergirls' sponsor.

Most of the girls' energy was directed toward money making projects to raise funds for a scholarship. This energy materialized in the form of selling programs and sponsoring the annual student-faculty game. This game, which brings some students and teachers "closer" each year, closed the season with a laugh.

jobs plus school equal fast-paced life for trucker working set

Distributive Education Club members led a fast paced life as they attended school half a day, slaved at a part time job in local stores, and prepared themselves for district conventions and competitions.

These members of the Trucker working set got into the "spirit of things" by sponsoring projects which included the annual school door decorating contest and a pre-school assembly in accordance with Americanism Week with Mr. Coleman, an ex-spy, as the featured speaker.

ict club engages in community service

Projects, assemblies, contests, and jobs were a part of keeping ICT members busy during this year of change.

Under the leadership of a new advisor and all new officers, the ICT club completed several community projects which included a party for the children's ward at Maryview Hospital and taking youngsters from the Portsmouth Boy's Home to a CHS basketball game.

Much time and work went into planning and preparing for district contest and rallies held throughout the year. But the most important and most enjoyable "project" of the year was collecting a hard-earned paycheck each week.

Other events included the third annual musical, which was "Finian's Rainbow." The Village Singers, who attended a daily class, performed in numerous musical appearances including their second trip to Sunbury, North Carolina for a benefit show and their return trip to the Miss Longwood Pageant.

belated trip to cherry blossom festival rewards year of intense practice half times, parades, concerts fill band's calendar

With Drum Major Billy Gregg leading the way, the CHS band marched with confidence onto the football field for the playing of the National Anthem at the beginning of every home game. At half-time they returned to delight the crowd with musical selections, both of the "swinging" and reminiscent variety.

Concerts and various other performances appeared on winter and spring calendars. At Christmas, they offered a combined assembly with the chorus featuring seasonal music. In January, band members practiced long hours in preparation for the annual Winter Concert. In April, they journeyed to the nation's capital to participate in the famed Cherry Blossom Parade.

"A pigskin of pride" — this was that intangible quality evidenced in every football contest this year. With the thrill of victory coming only once, the gridiron Truckers never ceased to exert a "we-won't-give-up" effort.

The "breaks" did not seem to be with the Churchland squad. Among the handicaps faced were lacking depth and playing teams ranked high in state listings. However, with the attributes of persistence and good sportsmanship, the Truckers produced a number of exceptional players such as Alan LeGrande, Ronnie Psimas, and Steve Bristow. Experience and desire thus foreshadow a bright future for the Truckers.

conquest of unbeaten northampton—bright spot of season

In the first game of the season with Indian River, the Truckers surprised numerous people. Having been predicted to lose by 3 TD's, the Churchland squad lowered the margin to a mere 6 points. But the following game with cross-town rival Wilson did not prove as favorable. Wilson, scoring rapidly in the opening minutes, maintained a great lead and prevented the Truckers from reaching the scoreboard. In the next four games, the downtrodden team was able to score only 6 points against Deep Creek and went scoreless against Great Bridge, Granby, and First Colonial. Hard work and patience finally paid off with the Trucker's only victory over Northampton.

with determination and pride jv's survive poor season

Determination, pride, plus the desire to compete enabled the Baby Truckers to survive one of their most disappointing seasons ever. Veterans having advanced to the varsity, the JV's were left with inexperience and a lack of depth which greatly accounted for the season's 0-7 record. Molding this young team into one unit, coaches Ben Griffin and Walter Bostic created unrelenting teamwork and spirit, preparing them not only for each individual contest but also for future contests and challenges. By hard practices and scrimmages with the varsity, the JV's gained valuable knowledge and training. Robbie Babbitt, Danny Reitz, Ricky Gay, and Donnie Fulton supplied many bright spots during the year.

reitz, robertson set winning pace for marathoners

With a strong pace set by marathoners Paul Reitz and Zonita Robertson, the CHS cross country team was able to compile a record of four victories out of the seven meets. The three defeats came in dual competition with Wilson, Cradock, and Oscar Smith. A team average of thirty points marked the season one of the best.

The team obtained two berths in the Southeastern District meet. Reitz took eighth place with a time of 13:34 and Robertson tenth with a time of 13:36. Unable to obtain a top seeding in the Eastern Regional meet, the team decided not to go to the State meet.

varsity cheerleaders work to wee hours of night on player tags

It was not an uncommon sight to catch a glimpse of a "one-eye opened" cheerleader. Its companion was probably trying to catch up on sleep, having stayed up to pre-dawn hours making player tags and hall signs to boost spirit. Sandy King, honored by the "star on her vest," piloted the Varsity Squad at pep rallies and athletic games in injecting spirit into Trucker life.

Linda Workman and her JV cheerleaders likewise strove in the stimulation of JV spirit. However, cheering for the first time with eleven girls, they met one problem: "Who doesn't get a letter in the spelling of C-H-U-R-C-H-L-A-N-D?"

gymnastics makes big switch from club to minor sport

By competing for the first time in Amateur Athletic Union and sectional Virginia High School League meets, the gymnastics team made "the big switch" to become a part of the ever growing sports program at Churchland.

Gymnastics was an all year sport, with practices beginning in early fall and continuing through the meets held in early spring. Members of the team took good advantage of new equipment and improvements made in the auxiliary gym.

In addition to competing in meets, the team was kept busy by performances for parents on "Back-to-school Night" and students during a spring assembly.

truckers enjoy 12-6 season over tough, speedy foes

The Varsity Basketball team enjoyed a winning season in their first year under Coach Griffin. Bowing only to extremely tough opponents, the Truckers suffered only one upset, Portsmouth Catholic. An unwelcome challenge to all schools, they never lost by more than twelve points, except Maury, which was close to the final minute. The Churchland squad found much hard work as they faced more fast-breaking tactics by the opposition than in any previous season. On the contrary, our team edged out rival Western Branch when they slowed the ball down. Beating them at their own game, the low score set a South-eastern District record.

The Pep Club honored Richardson and Weatherford as most valuable players.

"Most of our scoring came from the fast break and a pressing defense which made our opponents commit many mistakes." Coach Riggs thus commenting on the 15-3 record of the JV courtmen produced a team which was characterized by combined effort and a group of boys with individual desires to make a single working unit. With someone always ready to take up the slack, the JV Truckers showed a multiple defense to all area schools; by so doing it became difficult for any opponent to predict Trucker strategy. As such, the boys made happiness occur almost twice weekly in attaining the best record of any Trucker JV team.

As the only girl's basketball team in the Portsmouth Public School System, the Truckerettes was a rookie team with only four veterans and Mrs. Buchanan as coach. Freshmen on the first string included Betty Hanbury and Kathy Hoffler in the roving positions. Peggy Lynch, a co-captain, was high scorer with over 75 points. With only a few victories such as over Virginia Wesleyan and Forest Glen, the Truckerettes' theme was "wait until next year."

An undefeated JV team, the Truckerettes' Juniors made up of scrubs, played four games of which two were victories over the Western Branch "Baby Cubs."

Wm - whom I enjoyed being friends with all year. Even though I wasn't before. Next year maybe we can ~~still~~ double to the fest. Soph. Your friend Eddie

A "switch" really occurred for Churchland matmen with a season of many highlights. The team received the coaching ability of Jack Mounie who navigated the wrestlers to a season consisting of one loss and twelve victories. In the one defeat with Oscar Smith, ten points were forfeited, yet a mere 2 points separated the teams. In addition to many individual wrestlers ranked high in the district, the team as a whole contained the best overall balance in its history.

"We had little trouble getting first place in many events. It was the loss of second and third places that hurt most." So commented Coach Potter in reference to the 0-5 record of the indoor track team; a lack of experience and not enough depth were also vital factors in determining the outcome of many of the meets. Running against the five strongest teams in the Southeastern District, the track men, having all meets at Frederick College, broke two existing school records: Paul Reitz in the two mile run with a time of 10:37.5 and Caleb Powell in the triple jump with a hop-skip-jump of 44' 11½".

halftime, featuring theme "world of funnies," salutes classes of '44 and '59

Many long hours of hard work led by Homecoming co-chairmen Regina Benzie and Kathi Liebler came to an end on Friday, October 18. Beginning in August, plans were made to make this event honoring the classes of '44 and '59 the best yet. The halftime ceremonies, with the theme of "The World of Funnies," were climaxed by the award for the winning float going to Connie Hemby Tri-Hi-Y and the crowning of Queen Adair Atwell and Maid of Honor Debbie Rosso. A dance with the Blue Eyed Soul followed.

final "web of murder" performance to mr. gwin

" . . . before the weekend is over, someone in this room will see that I am dead from the venom of a spider." And so, Minerva Osterman's prophecy set the stage for "Web of Murder," the mystery-comedy presented by this year's Senior Class.

From the opening scene until the final curtain, the tense drama held the rapt attention of the audience, as murders were committed right and left. But not until the closing moments of the play was the "villain" "found out" and revealed to all.

The final performance was dedicated to the director, Mr. Lewis L. Gwin, who has been a Trucker for the past ten years.

Proceeds, totaling $350, were used to increase the Senior Class treasury.

donuts, coat check help build scholarship fund

Who were those industrious students who rang our door bells at eight-thirty Saturday morning to sell doughnuts, who took time to check coats at basketball games, who maintained the display case outside the office? The CHS National Honor Society, of course.

Inducted into the society last spring, these seniors spent much of their time raising funds for a scholarship; initiating a service project; upholding the standards of scholarship, leadership, service, and character; and generally representing the highest honor conferred on any Trucker.

marshals draft code of regulatory standards

"Do you have a note?" was the day to day phrase of the Marshals, as they assumed their newly-vested task as hall monitors. Not only did they undertake this disciplinary job, but also acted as CHS ushers on several occasions—open house, the Senior Class Play, the Choral and Band Christmas Concert, and the musical. The Marshals also assisted in the mock election by working the polls and counting the votes. For the first time in their history, a basic code for individual Marshal standards was drafted. Led by Chief Marshal Dale Van Cantfort, these twenty Juniors served outstandingly as a top echelon at CHS, and thus they helped put the school's best foot forward to the public.

24 churchland misses vie for 23rd miss churchland crown

(top) SUSPENSE GIVES WAY to smiles for Mr. and Miss Churchland winners Cindy Dixon and Davey Davis. (bottom) While the judges select finalists, Linda and Danny Darden entertain with selections of folk music.

"Who will be Churchland's Sweetheart?" was the question in everyone's mind as well as the theme of the annual Mr. and Miss Churchland contest. And what better setting than a tremendous, lacy Valentine and small cupids lurking in the background. Each girl appeared before the judges in both sports attire and evening wear. Between changes, entertainment was provided by Mr. Barnes and Miss Kathy Oliver, singing popular duets, Linda and Danny Darden harmonizing on well-known folk songs, and Ken Lundie presenting a solo.

Scoring the girls on personality, poise, and beauty, the judges made their choice of five finalists. As the excitement mounted, last year's Mr. Churchland, Reggie Kirkman, pinned Davey Davis as Mr. Churchland of 1969, and Shelby Miltier crowned the CHS Sweetheart, Cindy Dixon.

"22 RIGHT THEN 8 left, or is it 8 right then 22 left, or 15 up and 13 down, or . . . or . . . or . . ." wonders Mary Lou Balderson over her new lock!!

business life

each new day brought to us the further realization that our education was not being offered solely for the sake of education, but rather for moulding each of us into a citizen better able to live in our world of today and to cope with newly-encountered challenges of age-old problems.

ADDING A TOUCH of musical entertainment to the football game, the band serenades the spectators at a home contest.

HAPPY PAUL SMITH professes the glory of "good old mountain dew" as he belts out this rollicking version in the musical Peanuts put on by the entire choral department.

facts, figures, feelings about the '69 trucker . . .

Much of the old and familiar masquerading in the guise of newness characterized a year filled with frustrations and achievements, with mild disappointments and abundant rewards, with unwanted changes and welcomed innnovations. Encased in a world emphasizing educational excellence along with academic achievement, staff members of the '69 Trucker found themselves spending hectic hours carrying out never-ending jobs: in taking and re-taking pictures (oh, those closed eyes!), in dedicating an untold number of hours to writing copy (only 39 letters per line, please!), in soliciting advertising from local businesses (June through October forays), in cropping pictures (no legs or ceilings), and in drawing layouts (circles are out-of-date, staff!). But, why, oh, why was it so difficult to assemble the full 21 staff members at one time (except for the group picture, that is!)?

With so much going on in every quarter of CHS, the staff, starting with a meager idea of modern layouts and grouped identifications, found itself quite pleasantly surprised that it could put out an edition that portrayed school life through hundreds of pictures and thousands of re-typed words: a monumental effort that has turned out better than we ever hoped for. Perhaps as years pass, the full realization of the book's importance will be felt by all who have a copy which may serve to jog slipping memories of by-gone days and times spent learning and playing in our home away from home — our school, CHS.

I publically pass out orchids to:

ALICE GARLAND whose sincere "thank you" for all help and suggestions given by me is hereby returned a thousandfold.

MARY KAY HARRIS whose quiet ways served as a stimulus to the staff for thinking a little more deeply all year.

KENNY KASTNER who assumed leadership in the arduous task of assuring us financial stability in our many expenditures.

SIXTH AND "SEVENTH" PERIOD MEMBERS for thinking, typing, photographing, drawing, sorting, counting, writing, hair-pulling.

MR. RICHARD BRUCKSE who as a good-natured photographer assured us adequate coverage of events in and outside of school.

MR. JIM SAINE who never tired of saying to underclassmen "Let's have a big smile" and then snapped a memorable (?) picture.

MR. JOHN PERRY whom we came to consider as an integral part of our staff for all his assistance, especially with layouts.

SMITH AND WELTON'S for senior portraits.

THE FACULTY for understanding and patience during those seemingly interminable class interruptions for group pictures.

OUR ADVERTISERS who showed further interest in CHS by letting us make them honorary Truckers.
